A Word from SASE President Marion Fourcade

Welcome to SASE 2016 in Berkeley. This will be our 28th annual conference and one of our largest. It is a great pleasure to hold this event at the University of California, Berkeley. Berkeley is one of the leading universities worldwide, with a now-celebrated history as an epicenter of the student and hippie movements in the 1960s. The theme of the conference, “Moral Economies, Economic Moralities” resonates with this history and with intellectual traditions stemming out of the institution. It has been very gratifying to see how SASE participants have responded to this theme. We have a large number of mini-conferences, plenary sessions, and network meetings exploring the subject from a variety of angles.

Berkeley is located at the center of one of the most economically vibrant regions in the United States, the San Francisco Bay Area. Over 8 million people live in the combined San-Jose-San Francisco-Oakland combined statistical area, which corresponds to the 18th country in the world by GDP size. Home to the most legendary firms of the tech industry, the Bay Area is redefining the present and making a future whose technological and economic contours are still being contended with. You might encounter a self-driving car, see drones flying overhead, and be surprised at the number of people who use their phones to pay for groceries. All of this activity has made San Francisco, the Silicon Valley, as well as the East Bay, where Berkeley is located, places of tremendous opulence and wealth. San Francisco has become one of the most expensive cities in America, displacing the poor, the working, and the middle classes, who have to commute increasingly far distances in heavy traffic just to come to work. Unsurprisingly, the entire region is struggling with the social pains associated with this transformation, which has created much social discontent and – in a city known for its liberal political culture – spurred new social movements into action.

If you get a chance, step out of the urban areas and take some time to enjoy the beautiful nature! With the Sierra Nevada and Yosemite National Park to the East, Muir Woods and the ocean to the West, the Napa and Sonoma Valleys to the North, and Big Sur and the Monterey Bay to the South, there is a lot to visit. The Bay Area is also known for its self-conscious and adventurous food culture, enabled by the diversity and abundance of California's agriculture and by the region's ethnic diversity. You will eat well here, and will find many opportunities to enjoy simple, healthy foods in restaurants and farmers' markets. But know that this lifestyle also takes a toll on the natural environment (the state continues to reel from the worst drought in its history) and on the people, most of them migrants, who toil in the fields and farms for very little money.

Participating in organizing the conference has been a pleasure thanks to all the great people who have been helping. AnnaLee Saxenian, Neil Fligstein and Heather Haveman joined me on the organizing committee. With their relentless enthusiasm and customary efficacy, they put together a wonderful program, reaching out to speakers and organizing panels. Eva Seto from the Social Science Matrix at UC Berkeley has been the one indispensable and indefatigable person on the ground, and we owe her an immense debt of gratitude. Carla Hesse, Professor of History and Dean of the Social Sciences, and William F. Hanks, Professor of Anthropology and Director of the Social Science Matrix, threw their support behind the conference. And of course none of this would happen without the energy and dedication of our incomparable Martha Zuber, who is as much an intellectual visionary as she is an efficient manager, superbly assisted by Jacob Bromberg and Pat Zraidi. I would also like to thank Sciences Po and the director of the CSO, Olivier Borraz, for continuing to support SASE's Paris Office. Finally, my personal thanks are due to previous SASE Presidents, Glenn Morgan and Bruce Carruthers, as well as SASE's past and new Treasurers, Richard Deeg and Akos Rona-Tas, for all their help and advice throughout this year.

We hope you will have a great conference, enjoy Berkeley and come to love this university and the Bay Area as much as we do.

About This Program

This conference schedule has been loosely divided into two event types: speakers and sessions. In an attempt to limit scheduling conflicts, sessions do not overlap with featured speakers.

Plenary and semi-plenary featured speakers are all listed in the at-a-glance calendar.

There are ten time slots for sessions over the course of the conference, as indicated on the at-a-glance calendar. Since there are multiple sessions scheduled into each time slot, each session has been identified with a letter and a number. The letter corresponds to the network organizing the session and is paired with a number to create a unique identifier to help you locate the session in the program. Featured Panels are listed as FP, Mini-Conference Themes as TH, and Special Events as SP.

To find out where and when a given participant is presenting, you can look at the participant list at the back of this program. Next to his or her name, you will find the panels in which he or she is presenting (e.g., Jane Doe, A-8). Once you have this information, you can look for the A-8 panel in the main schedule in order to find the session time and location.

Alternatively, you can visit www.sase.confex.com/sase/2016am/webprogram/meeting.html

The main schedule provides a detailed list of sessions (titles, locations, participants, etc.) in chronological order. To help you navigate it more quickly, a list of sessions organized by network appears just before it in this program.

The PDF version of this program is available on the SASE website www.sase.org

*Please note: You must bring either a USB key or your own laptop if you plan on using a PowerPoint presentation (Macintosh users should bring a standard VGA convertor). USB keys are preferable.

Featured Speakers

Joshua Cohen is Distinguished Senior Fellow at the UC Berkeley School of Law, the Department of Philosophy, and the Department of Political Science, as well as a faculty member at Apple University. He is a political theorist, trained in philosophy, with a special interest in issues that lie at the intersection of democratic norms and institutions and has written extensively on issues of democratic theory, particularly deliberative democracy and its implications for personal liberty, freedom of expression, religious freedom, political equality, and global justice. He has also written on issues of global justice, including the foundations of human rights, distributive fairness, supranational democratic governance, and labor standards in supply chains. Cohen serves as co-editor of Boston Review, a bimonthly magazine of political, cultural, and literary ideas. He has published Philosophy, Politics, Democracy (Harvard University Press, 2009); Rousseau: A Free Community of Equals (Oxford University Press, 2010); The Arc of the Moral Universe and Other Essays (Harvard University Press, 2011); and edited (with Alex Byrne, Gideon Rosen, and Seana Shiffrin) The Norton Introduction to Philosophy (2014).

Room 145, Dwinelle Hall, Saturday 1:15pm

Paul Pierson is the John Gross Professor of Political Science at the University of California at Berkeley. Pierson's teaching and research includes the fields of American politics and public policy, comparative political economy, and social theory. His most recent book is American Amnesia: How the War on Government Led Us to Forget What Made America Prosper (Simon and Schuster 2016), co-authored by Jacob Hacker. Pierson is an active commentator on public affairs, whose writings have recently appeared in such outlets as The New York Times Magazine, The Washington Post, and The New Republic. Pierson is also the author of Dismantling the Welfare State? Reagan, Thatcher, and the Politics of Retrenchment (Cambridge 1994), which won the American Political Science Association's 1995 prize for the best book on American national politics. His article "Path Dependence, Increasing Returns and the Study of Politics" won the APSA's prize for the best article in the American Political Science Review in 2000, as well as the Aaron Wildavsky Prize for its enduring contribution to the field of public policy, awarded by the Public Policy Section of the APSA in 2011. He has served on the editorial boards of The American Political Science Review, Perspectives on Politics, and The Annual Review of Political Science. From 2007 to 2010 he served as Chair of the Berkeley political science department.

Room 155, Dwinelle Hall, Friday 1:15pm

Ananya Roy is Professor of Urban Planning and Social Welfare and inaugural Director of the Institute on Inequality and Democracy at UCLA Luskin. She holds The Meyer and Renee Luskin Chair in Inequality and Democracy. Ananya's scholarship has focused on urban transformations in the global South, with particular attention to the making of "world-class" cities and the dispossessions and displacements that are thus wrought. Her books on this topic include City Requiem, Calcutta: Gender and the Politics of Poverty and Worlding Cities: Asian Experiments and the Art of Being Global, the latter co-edited with Aihwa Ong. A separate line of inquiry has been concerned with new regimes of international development, especially those that seek to convert poverty into entrepreneurial capitalism and the economies of the poor into new markets for global finance. Her authored book on this subject, Poverty Capital: Microfinance and the Making of Development, received the 2011 Paul Davidoff award, which recognizes urban planning scholarship that advances social justice. A resident of Oakland, CA, for many years, her recent research uncovers how the U.S. "war on poverty" shaped the city and how it became the terrain of militant politics as well as experiments with community development. This work appears in her new book, Territories of Poverty: Rethinking North and South, co-edited with Emma Shaw Crane. Ananya's ongoing research examines what she calls the "urban land question", in India, as well as in globally interconnected nodes across North and South. Her emphasis is on how poor people's movements challenge evictions and foreclosures, thereby creating political openings for new legal and policy frameworks as well as for rethinking the liberal foundations of property and personhood.

Room 155, Dwinelle Hall, Saturday 1:15pm

Featured Panelists – The Moral Economy of Tech

Sunday, 12:30pm – 155 Dwinelle Hall

Maciej Cegłowski was thrust naked into an uncaring world forty years ago and has been doing his best to deal with the situation. He is a developer, businessman, writer, and owner of the bookmarking service Pinboard. He has described programmatically-generated web advertising as a model that encourages the growth of surveillance, and compared large stocks of data on Internet users to the archives of Communist secret police services in his native Eastern Europe. He presently divides his time between making fun of large technology companies on Twitter and writing a series of articles about a recent, crowd-funded trip he took to Antarctica.

Kieran Healy is Associate Professor in Sociology and the Kenan Institute for Ethics at Duke University. His research interests are in economic sociology, the sociology of culture, the sociology of organizations, and social theory. He is the author of Last Best Gifts: Altruism and the Market for Human Blood and Organs. His articles have appeared in numerous journals including the American Sociological Review, the Journal of Political Philosophy, and the American Journal of Sociology. Healy has taught at the University of Arizona and was a research fellow at Australian National University. He was awarded a Residential Fellowship with the Center for Advanced Study in the Behavioral Sciences at Stanford University in 2008. His current focus is on the moral order of market society, the effect of quantification on the emergence and stabilization of social categories, and the link between these two topics.

Stuart Russell is Professor of Computer Science at UC Berkeley, Adjunct Professor of Neurological Surgery at UC San Francisco, and Vice-Chair of the World Economic Forum's Council on AI and Robotics. He is a recipient of the Presidential Young Investigator Award of the National Science Foundation, the IJCAI Computers and Thought Award, the World Technology Award (Policy category), the Mitchell Prize of the American Statistical Association and the International Society for Bayesian Analysis, and the ACM Karlstrom Outstanding Educator Award. In 1998, he gave the Forsythe Memorial Lectures at Stanford University and from 2012 to 2014 he held the Chaire Blaise Pascal in Paris. He is a Fellow of the American Association for Artificial Intelligence, the Association for Computing Machinery, and the American Association for the Advancement of Science. His research covers a wide range of topics in artificial intelligence including machine learning, probabilistic reasoning, knowledge representation, planning, real-time decision-making, multi-target tracking, computer vision, computational physiology, global seismic monitoring, and philosophical foundations. His books include The Use of Knowledge in Analogy and Induction, Do the Right Thing: Studies in Limited Rationality (with Eric Wefald), and Artificial Intelligence: A Modern Approach (with Peter Norvig).

AnnaLee Saxenian is Dean and Professor in the School of Information and professor in the Department of City and Regional Planning at the University of California, Berkeley. Her most recent book, The New Argonauts: Regional Advantage in the Global Economy (Harvard University Press, 2006), explores how the "brain circulation" by immigrant engineers from Silicon Valley has transferred technology entrepreneurship to emerging regions in China, India, Taiwan, and Israel. Her prior publications include Regional Advantage: Culture and Competition in Silicon Valley and Route 128 (Harvard University Press, 1994), Silicon Valley's New Immigrant Entrepreneurs (PPIC, 1999), and Local and Global Networks of Immigrant Professionals in Silicon Valley (PPIC, 2002).

SASE 2016 Annual Conference Theme

Moral Economies, Economic Moralities

University of California, Berkeley

Moral judgments that justify or vilify different economic arrangements on the basis of some final value are extremely common in the social sciences. Since the beginning of political economy, market institutions have elicited strong and rival views across a broad spectrum of positions. Those who marvel at the coordinating power of the invisible hand confront those who revile capitalism's inherently exploitative nature. The celebration of efficiency faces the condemnation of waste. And democratic interpretations of laissez faire meet the hard reality of growing social inequalities. There is no economy that is not political and moral at the same time.

Social scientists, of course, are not the only ones to judge the economy while living in it. E.P. Thompson famously coined the term "moral economy" to denote the inchoate feelings and obligations that orient workers, and make them see certain courses of action (such as riots) as legitimate or illegitimate. To the extent that individuals and institutions act on them, those judgments help constitute economic lines of action, too.

Finally, economic instruments and technologies lay down, and perform, moralized rules about what is expected of economic actors. All exchange systems embed implicit or explicit codes of moral worth in their specific designs and rules; all economic institutions make and remake kinds of moral beings by shifting their classificatory schemes or treatment algorithms. These "economic moralities," typically fashioned by the action of markets and states, interact more or less peacefully with people's "moral economies." Indeed many of today's pressing political conflicts may be understood in terms of the hiatus between these two social forms.

SASE Announces its 29th Annual Conference Theme & Location

What's Next? Disruptive/Collaborative Economy or Business as Usual?

Université Claude Bernard - Lyon 1
29 June – 1 July 2017

Call for papers

Hotels, taxis, plumbers, tool sellers or hires, and car renters are all facing the challenges presented by the ever-growing number of apps and social networks that organize exchanges between non-professionals and ephemeral users. Many claim this is a radical transformation for the traditional economy. Although digital technologies are crucial to the development of this new form of economy, there is greater innovation in the new behaviors it generates, in the alternative forms of valuation it requires, and in the new social practices it implies than in the technologies themselves.

But these new forms of exchange may take rather different if not opposed paths. Some develop as a kind of anti-market alternative: these are based on swap – with one partner providing time or skills to another who reciprocally provides another skill or service – or even on altruism – as when one welcomes visitors for the sake of meeting and exchanging with new people. Collaboration, solidarity, reciprocity, and sharing play a strong role and are strong drivers in the development of forms of counter-institutional exchange. These exchanges take place not only on the Internet, but also in places that are neither workplace nor domicile. Are these collaborative spaces/communities (fablabs, hackerspaces, makerspaces, coworking spaces, etc.) reinventing the way we produce, work, innovate and exchange?

Solidary-based exchanges are quite different from those relying on monetary exchange and create new markets that compete with the more traditional ones. They directly challenge the monopoly built by professionals, disputing the necessity of professional skills for the activities concerned and thus disputing the exclusive access and control wielded by certain professional groups. They also challenge employment relationships, state regulation, institutionalized work, and the very valuation of the activities in question. Indeed, we are seeing the extension of collaborative habits developed on the Internet (sharing data, information, and knowledge) to organizations. Competition, deregulation (or even disruption), and conflicts over competence are major features of this development, which some consider the return of the commons.

Both forms of economy nevertheless raise similar issues. They question the conditions allowing for the development of these new forms of exchange. Allowing others to use one's apartment or one's car (for free or for money), sharing common goods, or producing in common (with open-source material) not only implies a relationship of trust on the part of borrowers, shared users, or producers, but also a certain relationship to one's personal goods and to property more broadly.

The collaborative economy also has a policing function that should be explored in two ways: on the one hand, the continued vitality of exchange relies heavily on the reputation of partners, which is built upon the visibility of ratings obtained by both users and providers alike. Everyone assesses everyone else and thereby exercises control over the group. On the other hand, people are creating rules to organize and protect their common work from the "enclosures" of the market (creative commons licenses).

SASE's 29th conference, to be held in Lyon from 29 June to 1 July 2017, will explore the various impacts of these new forms of exchange and production on different sectors in a comparative way. It will inquire about the future of the collaborative (and disruptive) economy – will it really and durably effect more traditional exchanges or, in the end, will it be business as usual?

The 2017 SASE conference in Lyon, France, hosted by the University of Lyon I from 29 June to 1 July 2017, will welcome contributions that explore new forms of economy, their particularities, their impact, their potential development, and their regulation.

SASE 2017 Mini-Conference Themes

Call for Proposals

What's Next?
Disruptive/Collaborative Economy or Business as Usual?

Mini-Conference Theme Proposal Deadline: 30 September 2016

As they have in the past years, thematic mini-conferences will form a key element of next year's annual conference in Lyon, France, hosted by the Université Claude Bernard Lyon 1 from 29 June – 1 July 2017. Proposals are now welcome for mini-conference themes. Several mini-conference themes will be selected for inclusion in the Call for Papers by the program committee, which may also propose themes of its own. Preference will be given to proposals linked to the overarching conference theme, "What's Next? Disruptive/Collaborative Economy or Business as Usual," but mini-conferences on other SASE-related themes will also be considered.

Proposals for mini-conference themes must be submitted electronically to the SASE Executive Director by 30 September 2016. All mini-conference proposals should include the name(s) and email addresses of the organizer(s), together with a brief description. As in previous years, each mini-conference will consist of 3 to 6 panels, which will be featured as a separate stream in the program. Each panel will have a discussant, meaning that selected participants must submit a completed paper in advance, by 1 June 2017. Submissions for panels will be open to all scholars on the basis of an extended abstract. If a paper proposal cannot be accommodated within a mini-conference, organizers will forward it to the most appropriate research network as a regular submission.

Consult the program for the SASE 2017 theme. Please see www.sase.org to look at mini-conference themes from previous years.

Proposals should be submitted to: Martha Zuber (mzuber@sase.org)

Special Events

Welcome Reception

This year's Welcome Reception will take place on the patio of the Haas Pavilion at 6pm on Friday, 24 June.

Presidential Address and Awards Ceremony

This year's presidential address will take place in room 155 of Dwinelle Hall at 6pm on Saturday, 25 June. The presidential address will be followed by a ceremony to celebrate the winners of the inaugural SASE Early Career Workshop awards, EHESS/Fondation France-Japon prizes, Islamic Banking Center (IBC) at King Saud University prizes, and the SER Best Paper Prize.

Gala Reception

The gala reception will be held in the Pauley Ballroom of the Martin Luther King Jr. Student Union at 7:30pm, just following the awards ceremony. Please join us!

Alumni Reception of the Max Planck Institute for the Study of Societies (by invitation only)

The Max Planck Institute for the Study of Societies (MPIfG) cordially invites all MPIfG alumni to an Alumni Reception, to be held from 4pm to 5:30pm on Friday 24 June at the UC Berkeley Faculty Club. The Managing Director of the MPIfG, Jens Beckert, and the head of the Institute's Society of Friends and Former Associates, Werner Eichhorst, look forward to welcoming you.

The reception is open to MPIfG alumni and researchers only.

Meet the Editors: Socio-Economic Review A Discussion of Publication Strategies, Topics, and New Developments with the Editors

The editors of Socio-Economic Review will speak on getting published in the journal in room 187, Dwinelle Hall from 2:30-4pm on Friday, 24 June.

General Information for Participants

Computers and Wi-Fi

Wi-Fi is available campus-wide via the “CalVisitor” network. No password is required.

If you are a staff member or student from another educational institution attending an event at UC Berkeley, you can also access Wi-Fi via Eduroam with your login details from your home institution. Please contact your local IT support services within your home institution to check whether you are registered to access the Eduroam Wi-Fi network. More information about the Eduroam network can be found on the eduroam website: <https://www.eduroam.org/>

*Please note: You must bring either a USB key or your own laptop if you plan on using a PowerPoint presentation (Macintosh users should bring a standard VGA convertor). USB keys are preferable.

Coffee, Tea, and Water

Coffee, tea, and water will be available throughout the conference at the hospitality spaces located in the Tilden room at the top floor of the ASUC/Martin Luther King Jr. Student Union and the South Hall Lounge (Room 110).

Book Exhibit

This year’s book exhibit, created by the Library of Social Science, can be found in the South Hall Lounge (Room 110).

Directions

Simply let your driver know that you are going to UC Berkeley and you’re set! Registration is on the 5th floor of the ASUC/Martin Luther King Student Union, located at 2495 Bancroft Way, if you want to give a precise address.

By Public Transportation from San Francisco and Oakland

The UC Berkeley campus is located near the Downtown Berkeley station of the BART (Bay Area Rapid Transit).

From any BART stop in downtown San Francisco, you can take a Richmond (red or orange line) train to the Downtown Berkeley station (NOT the North Berkeley station).

From Oakland, you can take a Pittsburg/Bay Point (yellow line) train to 19th St. Oakland, and transfer there (by walking across the platform) to a Richmond train, and get off at Downtown Berkeley.

From the BART station, it is a 12-minute walk to the Martin Luther King Jr. Student Union. For more information, visit the BART website (<https://www.bart.gov>).

Several bus lines also run from Oakland to campus, including the 1, 1R, and the 18.

By Public Transportation from San Francisco International Airport

By Public Transportation from Oakland International Airport

Take the BART train from the airport to the Coliseum station and switch to the orange line Richmond train, and get off at the Downtown Berkeley station.

By car

See visit.berkeley.edu/directions-parking for precise information.

Meals and Tourism

For lunch, there are a number of options on Bancroft Street and Telegraph Avenue, including Café Milano, Julie's Café, Free House, Tako Sushi, and the Musical Offering Café.

There are also a number of options on campus, including Café Zeb (located inside the School of Law, closed Saturday and Sunday), the Free Speech Café inside Moffitt Library, the Bear's Lair near the ASUC building, as well as a food court in the bottom floor of the ASUC building.

Tourism information may be found on the SASE website (www.sase.org).

Copy Shops

You can find copy shops at the following locations: Copy Central (2576 Bancroft Way), Copy Central (48 Shattuck Ave), Staples (2352 Shattuck Ave), Zee Zee Copy (2431-C Durant Ave.), Copygrafik (2282 Fulton St.).

Map

On the next page is a zoomed-in map of campus, with the locations of various conference events marked by circles. Registration, gala reception, and one hospitality space are located in the Martin Luther King, Jr. Student Union/ASUC building (1).

Conference sessions will take place in Barrows Hall (2), South Hall (3), Moses Hall (4), Evans Hall (5), Dwinelle Hall (6), and Stephens Hall (7).

The book display and an additional hospitality space are also located in room 110 of South Hall (3). The welcome reception will take place on the Haas patio (8) and the MPIfG Alumni Reception will take place at the Faculty Club (9). The Downtown Berkeley BART station is located at the far left of the map, at the corner of Center Street and Shattuck Avenue.

2016 Socio-Economic Review Best Paper Prize

Matthew Soener and Darius Bozorg Mehri

The SER Best Paper Prize committee (Sigrid Quack, Ashley Mears, and Andrew Schrank) considered all the reviewed papers for the four 2015 volumes, including symposia papers, but not state of the art, discussion or review forum papers. The committee looked for papers that: 1) addressed substantive questions and issues that have far reaching implications and are of interest to a broad range of SER readers; 2) clearly and effectively engaged prior theory and research; and 3) used state of the art research methods to analyze new or existing data sets in ways that either brought important new phenomena to light or substantially revised existing understanding of socio-economic facts, trends or relationships.

The committee is delighted to announce two winners of the eighth annual prize for the best submitted article published in the previous year: Matthew Soener, for his paper “Why do firms financialize? Meso-level Evidence from the US Apparel and Footwear Industry, 1991-2005” (SER vol. 13, no. 3, p. 549-573), and Darius Bozorg Mehri, for his paper “The Role of Engineering Consultancies as Network-Centered Actors to Develop Indigenous, Technical Capacity: The Case of Iran’s Automotive Industry” (SER vol. 13, No. 4, p. 747-769).

Matthew Soener’s paper intervenes in the literature on financialization by considering the conditions under which some firms financialize within a single industry: U.S. apparel and footwear. Using a panel dataset drawn from multiple industry sources, the author finds that the financialization of firms is driven by their position in global production networks. Branded manufacturers and marketers like Nike, which are little tied to factory production, are more likely to be financially specialized, while retailers, which have greater pressures to invest in physical assets that contribute to their competitiveness, are unable to be as financially active.

Soener’s paper pushes the financialization debate towards a much needed differentiation at the industry and company level and it opens important avenues for future comparative research. Its findings highlight the significance of firms’ productive role for understanding their propensity to financialize, and thereby points towards the necessity to understand global production networks in order to understand financialization. The research design of the study cleverly exploits variation among non-financial firms while keeping industry constant, and it challenges the view implicit in both political economy and neo-institutionalism that financialization is a totalizing force across global corporations.

Darius Bozorg Mehri’s paper shows that a country, even when largely isolated from the international community, can develop an industry with an indigenous technical capacity if it establishes ties to engineering consulting firms. The article points to the transfer of ownership of technology to local firms as a mechanism of upgrading when more conventional ties, such as the presence of multinational companies, are not available.

Mehri’s paper does not only provide an in-depth case study of a rarely studied country, but it also points to a possible pathway that has been ignored and understudied by political economists. Studying the significance of links to transnational networks of engineering consultancies, the paper highlights possibilities of capacity-building for developing and emerging countries in globalized industries. The paper is an excellent example of a qualitative single case study that carries theoretical and empirical significance beyond the case studied and provides inspiration for further transnational and comparative inquiry into the role of global engineering consultancy networks.

About Socio-Economic Review

Socio-Economic Review (SER) is the official journal of SASE. It is part of a broader movement in the social sciences that returns to the economy's socio-political foundations. Devoted to advancing socio-economics, SER deals with the analytical, political and moral questions arising at the intersection of economy and society. Articles in SER explore how the economy is or should be governed by social relations, institutional rules, political decisions, and cultural values. SER considers the different ways in which the economy affects society, such as by breaking up old institutional forms and giving rise to new ones. The scope of the journal is deliberately broad, and thus opens the debate to new variations on its general theme. Its editorial structure allows editors to engage intellectually with authors and their submissions.

To find out more about SER, including detailed information on how to submit a paper, please consult the website: <http://ser.oxfordjournals.org>.

Editor in Chief Gregory Jackson and the other editors of SER will speak on getting published in the peer-review journal in room 187, Dwinelle Hall from 2:30-4pm on Friday, 24 June.

About SASE's Home Base

The Center for the Sociology of Organizations (CSO) is SASE's headquarters.

The CSO was founded in the early 1960's by Michel Crozier, and pioneered the discipline of the sociology of organizations in France. Today it is part of Sciences Po and the CNRS. Erhard Friedberg directed it for many years, followed by SASE President-Elect Christine Musselin. Its current director is Olivier Borraz.

The CSO is a leading center of economic sociology in France, and its research covers the sociology of organizations, economic sociology, and public affairs. Scholars and PhD students participate in five major research programs at the CSO: Economic Governance, Higher Education, Risk, Health Politics, State and Territories.

With more than twenty senior full time researchers, thirty doctoral students and twenty affiliated research fellows, along with frequent guest scholars in residence (including a number of SASE members), the CSO is a lively international research community in the heart of Paris, and SASE is proud to be a part of it.

The Economic Sociology and Political Economy global academic community

Dear SASE members and colleagues,

There is no more propitious and proper occasion to present the Economic Sociology and Political Economy online academic community then the SASE annual meeting.

The Economic Sociology and Political Economy community's goal is to disseminate the insights of socio-political research of the economy to the public and academics; and to serve as a platform on which our members (more than 38,000 researchers, students, practitioners, state officials and journalists from 115 countries) share relevant information, exchange ideas and create collaborations (generating about 75,000 monthly website visits).

Reviews of enlightening books, interesting articles, worth reading posts from the leading blogs, sharp quotes, important calls for papers, scholarships and job openings are being brought on a regular basis to the attention of our followers; and all these related to topics in Economic Sociology, Political Economy, Social Studies of Finance and Markets, Labor and Welfare research, and Sociology of Economics.

The ES/PE community often serves as a teaching resource in order to arouse students' interest in these issues, to keep them academically involved as well as to encourage engaging in public sociology.

Our community is active on the main social media networks. You are welcome to visit us, to join, and feel free to spread the word about the ES/PE community to anyone who is interested in the socio-political study of the economy: your colleagues, students and friends.
